

Call for participants from the community

PhD research on police communication with speakers of English as a second language (ESL)

This PhD project at Nottingham Trent University aims to identify and improve communication difficulties between speakers of English as a second language (ESL) and the police England and Wales.

Project goals

- Identify communication challenges between ESL speakers and the police
- Provide recommendations for training methods to improve communication
- Increase the multilingual community's access to justice

Online survey

<https://app.onlinesurveys.jisc.ac.uk/s/ntusurvey/police-communication-survey-2>

Requirements

- ✓ Have a first language other than English
- ✓ Be 18 years or older
- ✓ Have communicated with the police in England or Wales as a witness, suspect, victim, or enquired about information
- ✓ Be interested in improving communication between second language speakers and the police

For more information please contact:
katherine.king2023@my.ntu.ac.uk